

AMÉLIE PAUL

A Distinctive Voice in Quebec Rock

ARTIST PROFILE

Amélie Paul is a multidisciplinary Quebec artist whose creative world brings together music, performance, hosting, acting, humour and digital content. With a strong personality and an unmistakable presence, she has built a loyal francophone audience online while developing a musical identity rooted in rock, emotion and freedom of expression.

A powerful, expressive performer with a distinctive voice, a strong digital presence and a natural connection with her audience.

A graduate in communications from the Université du Québec à Montréal, Amélie has worked across several areas of the entertainment industry. Her ability to communicate directly with the public, combined with her natural charisma and sharp sense of humour, helped her gain wider recognition through successful online videos and media appearances.

As a recording artist, Amélie has established herself with original songs including "Névrose," "Le Monde" and "Aide-Moi." Her single "Le Monde" reached number one in Canadian rock sales on iTunes, confirming the growing public response to her music and her ability to connect with listeners through powerful, emotionally direct material.

On stage, Amélie Paul and her band present an energetic pop-rock production built around her original repertoire, major rock classics and selected pop songs reimagined with a stronger rock edge. Her performances combine vocal power, theatrical confidence and a direct connection with the audience.

Bold, expressive and impossible to overlook, Amélie Paul represents a modern kind of rock performer: an artist equally comfortable behind a microphone, in front of a camera and in direct communication with her public. Her versatility, strong online visibility and distinctive stage presence make her a compelling choice for festivals, special events and live entertainment productions.
