EMMALINE

American jazz vocalist | violinist | songwriter

PROFESSIONAL BIOGRAPHY | 2026 EDITION

Prepared for international venues, luxury hospitality and special events

A modern voice with timeless sophistication.

Emmaline is the stage name of Emma Campbell, a Nashville-based American vocalist, violinist, songwriter, arranger and independent recording artist. Her musical identity brings together the elegance of classic jazz, the emotional warmth of soul, the accessibility of contemporary pop and the energy of funk. Her smoky, expressive voice and distinctive violin work create a refined sound that feels both nostalgic and current.

Emmaline began building her audience in 2018 by sharing acoustic covers, jazz-inspired reinterpretations and original songs online. Her official biography reports a following of nearly 500,000 across social platforms, while her independent releases have generated millions of streams. On stage, she is equally at home in an intimate jazz room, an elegant theatre, a luxury hotel or a headline concert setting.

CHAKA KHAN

Selected as the opening act for the 10-time GRAMMY winner on Emmaline's first U.S. tour.

SWEETWATER

Made her motion-picture debut in 2023 as jazz singer Jeanne Staples and performed on the soundtrack.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE MUSCAT

Reached a major international milestone in 2025 with two sold-out performances in Oman.

AMERICAN SONGWRITER

'These Are the Memories' earned second place in the Jazz category of the 2024 song contest.

From intimate jazz rooms to the international stage.

SCREEN AND SOUNDTRACK

On April 14, 2023, Emmaline made her screen debut in the motion picture Sweetwater, released in more than 1,200 U.S. cinemas. She portrayed Jeanne Staples, an emerging jazz vocalist, alongside Richard Dreyfuss, Cary Elwes and Jeremy Piven. Her voice appears throughout the soundtrack on classic material including 'It Had to Be You,' 'The Man I Love' and 'Down Home Blues,' performed as a duet with Gary Clark Jr.

ARTISTIC SIGNATURE

Emmaline's performances combine controlled, nuanced vocals with an assured stage presence and instrumental flair. Her violin solos, jazz-pop arrangements and warm audience connection allow her to move naturally between elegant standards, soulful reinterpretations and original songs. The result is sophisticated entertainment with strong visual identity and broad international appeal.
